WOMEN'S WOES.

Hard for any woman to do housework— to attend to daily duties with a constantly aching back. Every woman should learn the cause of backache and the cure.

Doan's Kidney Pills

relieve a bad back and cure it—cure every kidney and bladder disorder, from backache to diabetes.

Mrs. C. P. Goodnow, living at 143 Washington street, New Britain, Conn., says: "I gave a testimonial in December, 1898, to the merits of Doan's Kidney Pills; and in the statement said that I had been bothered with my back and kidneys for over thirteen years, not constantly, but when I caught cold it generally settled in my back, making it lame and sore. Often the pain through the small of my back was so severe as to make me cry out. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills, and procured some from E. W. Thompson & Co.'s drug store, on Main street. They helped my back immediately, and in a short time I was able to do my work. I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills at intervals during the last five years, when I felt an attack of backache coming on, and they always brought instant relief. I am never without them in the house."

Doan's Kidney Pills sold at all drug stores; 50 cents. Foster-McIlburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

GANG STRIPPER

It is in this form that the inventor purposes to put it on the market. Although it smells strongly of the alcohol, the mixture seems to be stable, and samples which were put up in two ounce tin boxes three months ago have lost little by evaporation. If a lighted match is touched to the alcohol paste it melts on the surface and takes fire, burning freely with the characteristic blue alcohol flame, only with a tinge of yellow added at the outer part. Burning freely in the box and giving a flame big enough to heat a chafing dish, a two ounce box of paste kept lighted for about two hours, where the same alcohol in a liquid form would have burned out in ten minutes.

Many uses for the new paste will occur to the reader. Alcohol is one of the most desirable of fuels for many purposes, and in a form where it can be transported without danger of its leaking or spilling would have an added value for hunting and canoeing trips and for exploring expeditions. Instead of a can of the fluid, my lady can have boxes of the paste to light under her chafing dish or to heat a curling iron, and a man can use it to heat shaving water or to make a toddy. If the mixture be heated to a melting point and then kept in agitation while it cools, it does not harden, but hardens in suspension. In this state the liquid alcohol might be recovered, and this suggests other uses for the compound.—New York Sun.

An Animal Story For Little Folks The Swimming School

The bullfrog sat upon a rock And croaked and croaked, croaked he: "I'm tired of banking work; I'm tired. More useful I will be."

"I'll stop this croaking all day long, With greenbacks all around." And then he left the bank and walked Until a duck he found.

"I, too, am sick of croaking round," Said Doctor Duck, with vim. "Let's start a swimming school and teach The birds to float and swim."

Said Mr. Frog: "I'll teach the birds To dive and swim, no doubt, And you can float and swim as well. 'Twill be the best thing out."

They built a bath house large and bright Down by a running stream And hung up placards all around To advertise the scheme.

The sparrow, crow and robin came, With oriole and jay, And all were entered on the books For lessons every day.

SOLIDIFIED ALCOHOL.

NEWARK INVENTOR DISCOVERS A PROCESS TO TRANSFORM THE LIQUID.

An inventor in Newark has succeeded in finding a compound which will hold alcohol in suspension in a solid form, and he declares that his discovery is both new and useful. Whether it be true that no one else has ever before succeeded in getting alcohol into a solid form, it is certain that no one has put it into the market in that shape. There is no doubt as to the usefulness and advantage of such a compound. The inventor contemplates its use solely as a fuel. Whether it could be used for other purposes does not appear, but there seem to be other possibilities for it.

After the inventor had exhibited a sample of the solidified alcohol to a San reporter and explained its uses, he offered to prove the character of the compound in a practical way by making some of it for the reporter. If the reporter would go to his workshop in Newark and take with him his own supply of alcohol. The only stipulation made was that the alcohol should be at least 95 per cent in strength, as the presence of water would prevent the success of the process. The reporter accepted the proposition and went to Newark, taking with him a half pint whiskey flask filled with 95 per cent wood alcohol.

The inventor measured out the alcohol and then for every two ounces of it added to it a slice of a waxy compound shaped like a piece of pie, and cut from a box the size and shape of a stove blacking box. Each slice of this compound was about an inch wide at the circumference of the box, half an inch thick and 1 1/2 inches long. What this was composed of is the inventor's secret. It felt waxy, and was bright and porous, and from its smell had evidently been prepared with wood alcohol.

The alcohol and this compound were heated together in a water bath until the alcohol boiled, and at that temperature the compound in it melted and mixed, with it, forming a clear liquid except for a pink coloring which was an arbitrary addition to the waxy compound. The mixture was now set to cool, and in a short time it became a stiff paste.

It is in this form that the inventor purposes to put it on the market. Although it smells strongly of the alcohol, the mixture seems to be stable, and samples which were put up in two ounce tin boxes three months ago have lost little by evaporation. If a lighted match is touched to the alcohol paste it melts on the surface and takes fire, burning freely with the characteristic blue alcohol flame, only with a tinge of yellow added at the outer part. Burning freely in the box and giving a flame big enough to heat a chafing dish, a two ounce box of paste kept lighted for about two hours, where the same alcohol in a liquid form would have burned out in ten minutes.

Many uses for the new paste will occur to the reader. Alcohol is one of the most desirable of fuels for many purposes, and in a form where it can be transported without danger of its leaking or spilling would have an added value for hunting and canoeing trips and for exploring expeditions. Instead of a can of the fluid, my lady can have boxes of the paste to light under her chafing dish or to heat a curling iron, and a man can use it to heat shaving water or to make a toddy. If the mixture be heated to a melting point and then kept in agitation while it cools, it does not harden, but hardens in suspension. In this state the liquid alcohol might be recovered, and this suggests other uses for the compound.—New York Sun.

A WARM BED.

An Arrangement For Storing Sweet Potatoes and Early Vegetables.

For years we have made the good old fashioned deep bed covered with boards and glass. This method proved expensive and laborious. Casting about for a better way, we met an extensive sweet potato raiser of the Ohio river section. From him we learned the following method, which we now use exclusively and with perfect success, says an Ohio Farmer correspondent:

For ordinary family use the bed should be made about 10 by 15 feet. A pit size and about six inches deep dug. Any rough boards may be used for frame, which is made about 18 inches high and of course the same size as pit. This is built inside of the pit and when completed extends one foot above the original surface of the ground. It is best to raise the north side of the bed about four inches higher than the south side so as to get best ter effects from the sunshine. The frame completed, then bank up on the outside to within one inch of the top, using the dirt that was thrown out of the pit. The bed is now ready for the manure, which should be of the kind ordinarily used for this purpose. Fill in about 12 inches deep, trampling well. Then cover the manure with about five inches of rich dirt.

The bed is complete. Now the covers. Two gables are made, the only timbers required being four good stiff pieces about 2 by 7 and seven or eight feet long. These gable ends are erected over at each end of the bed and at an angle of about 30 degrees. Next a strong wire is stretched from one gable to the other at the top for a ridgepole. This wire extends on over each gable and down to the ground at each end of the bed, where it is securely staked. If put on properly, this wire makes the bed very solid.

The bed is now ready for the canvas, which consists of extra heavy unbleached muslin made just the right size to extend from one side of the bed over the ridge pole to the other side. This canvas is tacked to the frame at each side and to the rafters at each end. Gables are covered with the same material. This muslin cover turns the rain, keeps out the cold and is almost as warm as glass. It is comparatively cheap, and when the bed needs attention it need not be loosened except at this corner.

This bed we have found very satisfactory, and if made the size recommended it will produce besides the sweet potato, tomato, cabbage and pepper plants, enough radishes, lettuce and beets for early family use.

MAKING CIDER.

The Best Varieties of Apples—Clean Mills and Utensils.

The present season, with its promising apple crop, will undoubtedly see a great deal of cider and vinegar made, says New England Homestead.

The prevailing idea that cider can be made from any kind of apples may result in a great deal of poor cider and consequently poor vinegar. Especially is this true in sections where premature dropping is more common than usual.

An attempt will undoubtedly be made to utilize this partially matured fruit by making it into cider. This may be the best means of disposing of it, but good cider cannot be expected from such fruit. It will be thin and watery, and vinegar made from it will contain a small percentage of acetic acid. As most states require 4 to 4 1/2 per cent of acetic acid, vinegar made from poor cider must be tested before being sold.

As the amount of acetic acid in vinegar will depend primarily on the percentage of sugar which the cider contains, it can easily be seen that to have the best cider and cider vinegar, well developed apples, containing enough sugar to make at least 6 per cent alcohol, must be used. They should not be of the very sour variety nor of the very sweet. Russets, Smith's cider, Snow and those of that class are the best. However, by judiciously mixing sweet and sour, a high class product results.

Another element of success is a clean cider mill. Of course, up to date cider makers have improved machinery and keep their buildings and presses perfectly clean, but in many of the apple growing sections there are small mills and presses. These are seldom in the best condition. All apple pomace should be removed as quickly as possible and not allowed to decay near the mill. The crushing rollers and the presses should be cleaned frequently and fumigated, if possible, by the use of burning sulphur. If the pomace cannot be utilized for stock feed, it should be hauled away and spread upon the land as fertilizer where it will be of the most benefit. All tanks and utensils used about the mill, where fumigation is impossible, should be scrubbed with lye from wood ashes or a strong solution of crude potash.

If the utensils are so old that taint or smell cannot be removed by this process, it pays to abandon them and get new ones. Where satisfactory conditions concerning surroundings cannot be obtained, it is best to haul the apples to the cider mill, have them worked up at once and take the cider home the same day. This prevents the absorption of objectionable odors and reduces to a minimum the evil effects of a poorly kept cider mill.

After the juice has been extracted from the apples the cider should be kept at a temperature of about 65 degrees, if possible, where wanted for use as cider. Even then fermentation will soon begin. After a few days the cider can be racked off into barrels which have been well cleaned. Fermentation, or at least the tendency to turn to vinegar, will be checked.

The Cowpea Moving Northward.

The cowpea is moving northward at a rapid rate. Five years ago it was not known where there are now acres on acres growing. Those who plant it on properly prepared soil, harvest it at the right time and give it the same care that clover should have will be pleased with it provided they plant the variety adapted to their latitude. The tall growing late varieties are all right for the south, but in latitude 39 and northward I am satisfied that the dwarf and earlier varieties, like the black, are most suitable and will give the best satisfaction. Those who grow cowpeas for hay should keep in mind that they are at their best for hay when the first or lower pods are ripening. After these pods are ripe the lower leaves begin to come off, and the stalk becomes hard and tough. Cut as soon as ready and thereafter handle like clover, and the hay will be first class. If one has no barn or shed for storing it, a rainproof covering of some sort should be put on the stack. I have seen farmers try to keep it with- out such protection, and in every case from one-fourth to three-fourths was spoiled before midwinter, says F. Grundy in Farm and Fireside.

A Peach Catalogue Projected.

H. C. Irish of the botanical garden, St. Louis, asks the co-operation of peach growers in a systematic study for a catalogue with full description of the varieties of peaches grown in America. He suggests that samples of three or four specimens of each variety of ripe fruit, together with a twig and a few leaves and a concise history and description of the tree, be sent to him.

Agricultural Briefs.

A good prospect for apples in New York state, with Baldwin in the lead. Greening, Russet and Spy are other varieties generally grown.

According to an exchange, the pepper mint oil crop, which a few years ago was the leading crop of Wayne county and brought more money into the hands of the farmers than did even the apple crop, will become nearly extinct.

Many persons will not realize what the green pea louse has done until they buy canned peas next winter. The price then will startle them, and they may talk powerfully about a trust of some sort. The truth is that this louse ruined the crop in many localities and is likely to do more damage in the future, says Rural New Yorker.

A quite unusual Canadian experiment has for its object the making of rum from the sap of the sugar maple. It is said that a liquor can be distilled from the sap of the maple which will retain all the delicate, sweet flavor which makes pure maple sugar so popular.

The Black Cat.

The famous "Black Cat" cabaret in Paris is in process of being shut up and sold out and its curious decorations scattered to the four winds, upon which the Boston Herald says:

The name Chat Noir was given to the cabaret because this worthy Bohemian, at the end of his resources, caused his favorite black cat to be cooked as a succulent "fricassée" of rabbit with plenty of onions. At the end of the desert, which consisted of a few nuts and a piece of cheese, Rodolphe rose, and, with his abominable bass voice, began to sing a requiem about Bibi, one of the three cats which had been killed to feed himself and his friends! Babette duly followed Bibi, but the last one, called Noireau, the finest tomcat on Montmartre, he did not sacrifice. As the story goes, it was the fat check of an artless Yankee that saved the cat. In gratitude, Salis hired a larger shop and adorned it with the "poster" sketches which made him a success. As every one knows, it became the fashion for other eccentric personages in Paris art life to add their mite to the place's decorations, and on those walls Caran d'Ache, Willette, McNab and many other illustrators have left some valuable autographs. Collectors will be eager to buy chunks of the cabaret, but the best thing would be to keep it whole and transport it to America, where it could be set up as a show.

A Wary Youngster.

Some of the small boys who get into a business life young can be relied upon for good common sense. A man in one of the big shops uptown was much pleased at this attribute in a boy he employed. He was a bright, honest boy, quick and reliable, and when a second boy was needed they sent for Sam. Couldn't he get them a boy? They wanted a boy as good as he was and he must know of one. After some thought he finally agreed to send one and the next day the boy arrived, and Sam was called to identify him.

"Do you know this boy, Sam?" asked the employer.

"Yes," answered Sam. "I know him. 'And you know him to be a good honest boy?'"

"I have played with him all my life, and I have always thought he was. 'But you will vouch for him?'" per- sisted the employer.

"No," answered Sam indignantly. "I won't vouch for any one. I wouldn't vouch for my own brother. How do I know what temptations you are going to put before him?"—New York Times.

Be as careful in dress at home as you would when abroad.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

WHAT IS CATARRH.

Hyomei Only Guaranteed Cure for This Common and Disagreeable Disease.

Hyomei cures catarrh by the simple method of breathing it into the nasal passages and lungs. It kills the germs of catarrhal poison, heals and soothes the irritated mucous membrane and effectually drives this disease from the system.

If you have any of the following symptoms, catarrhal germs are at work somewhere in the mucous membrane of the throat, bronchial tubes or tissues of the lungs.

offensive breath, dryness of the nose, pain across the eyes, pain in back of the head, pain in front of the head, tendency to take cold, burning pain in the throat, hoarseness, tickling back of the throat, formation of crusts in the nose, dryness of the throat, loss of strength, spasms of coughing, cough short and hacking, cough worse at night, loss in vitality, a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest.

huskiness of voice, discharge from the nose, stoppage of the nose at night, aching of the body, droppings in the throat, open mouth, sleeping, tickling back of the throat, formation of crusts in the nose, dryness of the throat, loss of strength, spasms of coughing, cough short and hacking, cough worse at night, loss in vitality, a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest.

Hyomei will destroy activity of all catarrhal germs in the respiratory organs and in a few weeks the cure will be complete.

This is a strong statement, but the Noyes Drug Store emphasizes it by agreeing to refund your money if Hyomei does not cure.

You Can Put Sticker Over Name.

The law in relation to the use of stickers permits a man to put a sticker immediately over as well as under the name of the man whose name he wants to cut. According to the amendment of 1903, and published in the Revised Statutes of 1903, Chapter 6, Section 24, the law is: "He may erase any name or names which are printed on the group or party ticket, and under the name or names so erased he may fill in the name or names of the candidates of his choice. Or if the voter places and sticks on, over the name or names of any candidate or candidates for any office or offices, a small strip or strips of paper, commonly known as a sticker or stickers, bearing thereon a name or names other than the name or names of the candidate or candidates so erased or covered up, the name or names of such candidate or candidates so covered shall be considered to be erased from the ballot, and the person or persons whose name or names shall so appear on such strip or strips so placed and stuck on the ballot, shall be deemed to be voted for by the voter as candidate or candidates for such office or offices."

SOUTH WOODSTOCK.

Franklin Grange Field Day.
The Franklin Grange field day was held in the grove at Geo. Stevens', Tuesday. It was a fine day and between two and three hundred took advantage of it. Mr. and Mrs. Stevens did everything for the entertainment of their guests. The grove was fitted up with seats and a platform built for the speakers and music. Two barrels of ice water were in convenient places, and out on the meadow were croquet grounds rolled down, which would accommodate six or eight sets, and beyond that was the ball ground.

The forenoon was spent in social talk with music from the graphophone of H. D. Cole, and then came dinner, which seemed to be enjoyed by all.
In the afternoon there was music by Bacon's orchestra, recitations by Bessie Cole, Lottie Millett and Elsie Cushman, song by Georgia Blaise, a few words by several of the worthy brothers, and music, then came the ball games, which were quite evenly matched, the score being 5 to 2. Ned Swan was on the grounds with his confectionery cart. Everyone went home well pleased with the day.

The total cost of the lead-and-zinc job was $27; the total cost of the barytes-and-zinc job was $54.

Mrs. Smith christened the vessel as it left the ways in proper manner. The launching was a very successful one and there were about three hundred people present.

The schooner is one of the finest to be launched this year, built of white oak and chestnut, planked with hard pine. The cabin is finished in sycamore.

There is more Oatmeal in this section of the country than in any other section of the State, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and resorted to remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven research to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood, and cures all surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any cure it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, etc.

Possibly Could Have a Vacation.

We were handed the following with the request to print. Evidently the one who drew up this petition was not in sympathy with the Friday afternoon vacation. How generally this was circulated we can't say. Here is the petition:

We, the undersigned business men, hereby agree to close our stores on and after the first day of August or July, 1905, for the purpose of having a month's vacation. The stores to remain closed until opened by the sheriff, or some of the clerks, who are tired of loafing, when there is nothing to loaf for.

When the public, of whom we hope to maintain our business standing, want ten pounds of sugar, one half pound of tea, collar or necktie, pound of nails, or any other ordinary every day need, they can send to Beers & Sawbuck, who are doing a land office business way out in the wide and wooly West, catching suckers.

We don't need the trade. We are only in this for fun. And only want you to drop in and tell us what you can buy boys' clothes for, that will not fit, also how much you paid for that range that you could not use. We like to have you keep us posted on the prices of goods at wholesale in Chicago. It keeps our courage up when we try to get 100 per cent. on some item that sells for a cent.

Maine State Fair.

W. R. Lincoln, press agent for the Maine State Fair, which will be held in Lewiston, Sept. 27-28-29-30, was in town Aug. 25 in the interest of the society.

The Midway this year will be galore with fun, fast and furious to entertain the masses.

People will see a $2,000.00 vaudeville show at the grand stand, while down town will be the mammoth Baby Show, art exhibit and a grand feature vaudeville entertainment, with a change of program every night at City Hall. Watch this paper for our ad, and further notices.

Boy Drowned.

The three-year-old son of John Gregg, residing about a mile from the village on the North Buckfield road, was drowned Thursday afternoon in the west branch of the Twenty Mile river which flows through the intervals in the rear of the house. Mr. Gregg was working in the field across the stream, and it is thought that the little fellow may have been seeking his father. His mother, missing him and not finding him at a nearby neighbor, sought him in the fields and found his body in the stream. Dr. Marston of West Sumner, who happened to be near at hand, was immediately summoned, but it was too late for resuscitation.

Are You Going to the World's Fair?

If so, you should take along a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. The hot weather, fatigue and change of drinking water and diet are almost certain to produce diarrhoea, and when you have this remedy at hand you can check it at once. If you wish to buy it while there you can get it at any drug store in St. Louis, and at the Inside Inn Drug Store. For sale by Noyes Drug Store, Shurtleff's, South and West Paris.

Oxford's Good Luck.

Oxford 8, Radcliffe 7.

In one of the most interesting ball games played on the Fair grounds, this year, the Oxford team defeated the Radcliffe to the time of 8 to 7.

The home team put after Adams in the first three innings, making 7 hits, one of them a double, and getting 7 men across the rubber. Bearce came in from first and caught the remainder of the game for Oxford and we never scored again.

The Oxford made one run in the first on a free pass to first, a sacrifice and a single, and one in the third on a hit, a stolen base and an error. In the next four innings neither side scored. In the eighth a batting streak gave Oxford four scores, leaving them one score to tie. In the ninth, Lewis the first man up for Oxford, hit a slow grounder to the infield, which Sparks made no effort to handle and Davis was safe on first. It should have been an easy out, and would have left the score tied at the end of the ninth. Wilson the next up hit a grounder straight over second base, Jordan was there ahead of the ball, but allowed it to go through him and lost a simple chance for a double play which would have given us the game. The home team went out in order in the eighth and ninth on flies.

The Radcliffe played two new men; Jordan at second base and Libby at right field. Jordan's playing was decidedly off color and he struck out three times. Bonney played a star game for Radcliffe and Davis excelled for the visitors.

Sam Eaton from Oxford, who usually umpires a good game, was a little off and gave the home team the short end of most of the close decisions.

A slight accident to Bearce, in the sixth, delayed the game a few minutes. Following is the score:

Why They Read

G. M. Morse of Danversport, Mass., says:—My wife was a Northwest Norway girl and was married 17 years ago in that part of the town and often we spend many pleasant hours thinking of the people that are left behind us among the pleasant hillsides. My wife has just returned from a four weeks' vacation at her father's, T. L. Newcomb's, and reports having a good time as one can have in your pleasant town. Don't forget to put in the news, if any from this part of the town, for it will be missed by those that read your very interesting paper, that is read by several from Norway after we have read it.

Scribner's Magazine for September contains a number of outdoor articles peculiarly suited to the culminating month of the recreation season. Frederic Island, the popular writer of fishing and hunting articles, contributes an account of a stage journey through the heart of Wyoming, under the title, In The Big Dry Country. A. Cary Smith, the veteran yacht designer, contributes Yacht-Racing Recollections and Reflections. He makes a strong argument for the personal element in yacht sailing. Stories of travel in Morocco, in Syria and reminiscences of H. M. Stanley. The Battle of Lake Erie in the war of 1812 series. Poems and short stories.

The next important event to take place at the Central Maine grounds, Waterville, following the Breeders' Meeting, this week, is the first annual fair of the Central Maine Fair Association. The days on which this exhibition is to be held are Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 20, 21 and 22. The premium list, which has just been issued, contains much that is of interest. The prizes that will be offered are divided with the greatest possible care into classes that cover the entire range of agricultural endeavor, so that all, from the aged member of the household, who may exhibit some specimen of his needlework, to the child of 12.

My Grandma's Home.

HORTENSE GARDNER GREGG.

Gently flows the fair Nezinecoot,
Broken not with restless foam,
Winding thro' the lowland meadows,
And arrayed in robes of purple.

Kindly friends, they gather 'round,
Near the pine trees on the hillside,
In the blue September haze,
I am dreaming of my Grandma

And her life of other days.
I can see a dark-eyed maiden,
From the "City by the Sea,"
Planning with her lover-brother
For the days that are to be.

I can see the little cottage
Shipping white amid the trees.
And I almost hear my Grandma
Speak again "mid scenes like these.

There the old sweep is bending
With its arm of darkened wood,
But no trace remains to tell me
Where the halm of gleamed stood.

Stranger hands the harvest gather,
Stranger feet the old ways tread,
Stranger eyes now coldly greet me,
As I pass with low bowed head.

Grandma's hair with gray was silvered,
When her dark face childhood knew,
But her dark eyes still in beauty
Held a spirit ever true.

Grandma's arms when play was over,
Grandma's kiss when griefs befell,
Grandma's smile when tasks seemed endless,
Grandma's love—and all was well.

Though we loved her dearly,
With us long she could not stay,
For the world, she did love best,
And they called her soul away.

Close beside Grandma we laid her,
Near the home they loved the best,
And today a marble headstone
Tells where Grandma lies at rest.

Grandma, Grandma! O, I see her
Just once more—my spirit thrills,
And I gaze beyond the white stones
To smile and nod to hills.

Wreathed amid the clouds of crimson
For one moment seemed to be
A sweet angel vision smiling
Hope and joy and peace to me.

And a whisper—was it Grandma?
Breathed: "Dear heart, do not despair.
Still I live to love and guide thee,
I am with thee everywhere."

Far beyond the stony ether,
In the mystic, great Unknown,
Lead me, O my Father, lead me,
To my Grandma's happy Home!

Norway, Me.

A WORD FOR ROOT CROPS.

Their Use in Stock Feeding in England, Scotland and Canada.

Considering the well known carefulness of American farmers in placing on the markets the products of the soil, it is surprising how reluctant they are to study the importance of root crops as a part of the most profitable feeding ration. Why this is so, unless by force of habit, a Canadian writer in American Agriculture does not attempt to explain, but says: True, the growing of alfalfa and rape has added immensely to the possibilities of mutton making. But for all that rape can be carried into winter use but to a limited degree, and alfalfa made into hay loses its succulency. Therefore, no matter how well this is saved in curing, the system of the animal, housed or yarded and fed hay with grain, misses that touch of nature so essential to its well doing, the something approaching grass in its makeup, as when eaten fresh off the field.

Here is where root crops step in to admirably fill the want. It is by this means largely that our British friends have been so long able to lead the world in producing such a large number of kinds of high class stock, which all the civilized nations draw on to improve their flocks and herds. It is said, and the well said, that the turnip proved to be the salvation of Scotland financially a century ago. In Canada we are closely following in the footsteps of the mother land, and that with most satisfactory results. In some sections of Ontario the claim is made, and I think it is a justifiable one, that in the last fifteen years the production of many formerly cropped to death farms has doubled. That has been the outcome of root growing and systematically feeding all hay, grain and roots grown to improved stock. Unprofitable grain growing and grain selling have given way to all productions being marketed on foot and through milk cows.

GEESSE AND DUCKS.

Popular Breeds, Mating, Hatching and Care of the Young.

The best known breeds of geese and their weights are as follows:

	Pounds.
Toulouse gander.....	25
Toulouse goose.....	25
Emden gander.....	25
Emden goose.....	25

A Mating.—One gander to three females. Mate with large, vigorous birds.

Management.—In spring make large, comfortable nests. In most cases two clutches of eggs are laid, sometimes three. Collect the eggs soon after being laid, as they are easily chilled.

Hatching.—Some breeders who hatch geese on a large scale use incubators. One of these breeders says: "I incubate their first laying with chicken hens and frequently let 'old mother geese' care for her second hatch. Be sure to have the hens that are chosen for sitters free from lice. Sprinkle the eggs with warm water twice during the last week. Offspring in dry weather will do no harm. Remove the goslings from the nest as they are hatched, for they are easily mashed. Keep them in a flannel cloth in a basket in a good warm place until all are hatched. Sometimes the goslings will have to be helped out of the shells."

Concerning Ducks.

Weights of ducks are as follows:

	Pounds.
Feldin drake.....	7
Young drake.....	7
Aylesbury drake.....	8
Young drake.....	8
Rouen drake.....	8
Young drake.....	8
Young drake.....	8

Early in the season three to five ducks are allowed to a drake; later in the season, when running outside, eight to twelve. The drake should not be over two years of age.

Ducks lay from 100 to 140 eggs in a season. The eggs take twenty-eight days to hatch. Duck eggs are hatched by hens or ducks. They hatch well by incubator.—A Canadian Poultryman.

Early Hotbeds and Plant Protectors.

Excavating for hotbeds will be pretty hard work for the diggers, as Jack Frost has not been idle in these regions, says a Michigan writer in Rural New Yorker.

The first early beds are far better made thus on account of the extra amount of manure required for a long pull. With the preparation of the beds comes also the repairing of sash or glazing and painting new ones.

Plant protectors are another indispensable convenience. Made of heavy tarred paper, they cost but little either in time or money, and their worth is hard to estimate. Other kinds of protectors, as plain boxes, boxes with glass tops, etc., are all practical and useful and for those who can afford them are a good investment. To others, however, the cost is prohibitive, but the tar paper is in reach of all.

WHAT ADVERTISING DID.

Enormous Increase in Sales of National Biscuit Company.

The annual meeting of the National Biscuit company, held in Jersey City, was of considerable interest. The report of Mr. A. W. Green, chairman of the board of directors, showed a phenomenal growth in the business of the company. This he explained as follows:

"When the company started, our goods were sold almost entirely in bulk, and the package business was in its infancy. We determined that the true way to sell certain of our goods was to sell them in small, airtight, moisture proof packages. The first result of this determination was the Unesoda biscuit, a five cent package protected by United States patent. The idea was novel, and we soon found that we had struck the taste of the people. The introduction of the Unesoda biscuit was followed by many other packages put up in the same manner and sealed with the in-er-seal trademark design.

"The next point was to reach the consumer. We did this by extensive advertising. "The results have exceeded even our expectations. The total sales of the company increased to $38,625,135, a gain of $1,337,975, or 6 per cent, and the profits increased to $3,670,445, a gain of $352,000 over the previous year. During the past year the company invited its employees to invest in its stock, and they have taken over 4,000 shares."

Great and Good Friends.

"But how about me? Ah!"
Gasp!—
"The Korea."

"You'll sit in my lap, poor child!"
Said the Jap.

"No! I will take care of you!"
Said the Bear.

Poor thing! There she stands, With up-lifted hands, And waits Till they start To pull Her apart.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Cow's Revenge

There was once a cow with a brass ring in her nose that lived alone in the big pasture of Farmer Clark. One day an artist came into the pasture to paint a picture, and the cow thought it was so very fine that she said:

"Won't you paint me one?"
"Yes," said the artist, and he daubed a big dab of green paint right in the center of the cow's forehead. When she reproached him for this he laughed at her and climbed the fence and went home.

Not long after that he came back, though, and began to paint another picture of the trees and grass and the sky.

"Oh, the beautiful sky!" he cried aloud. "The beautiful sky! How I could live in the sky, with its wonderful blue!"

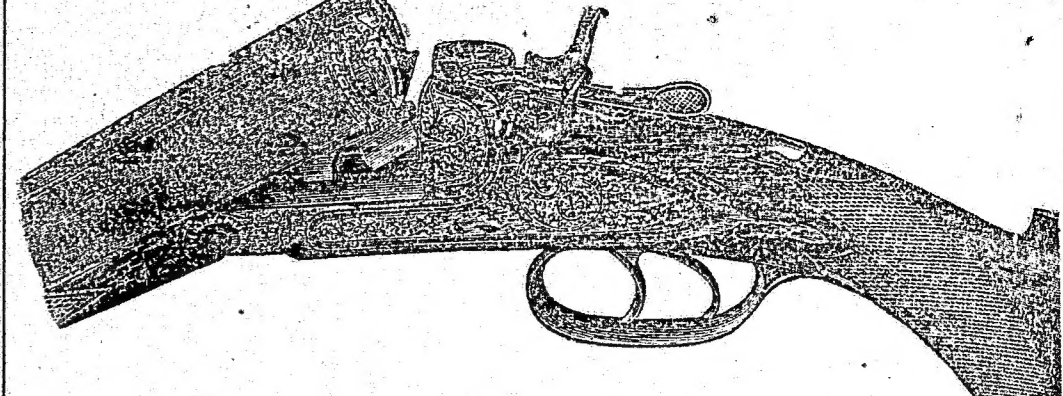

Now, the cow had crept up behind him, and when she heard him say that she lowered her head and tossed him up as high as she could.

"How do you like the sky now?" she cried as he came down.

Before he had time to reply she tossed him again.

"Why don't you stay up there in the beautiful sky when I send you there?" asked the cow as he came down the second time.

And then she tossed him up again. When he struck the ground the third time, the artist took to his heels and ran home without waiting for his picture or his paints.—Atlanta Constitution.

HARRISON.

Left the Chickens Heads.

Some miscreant entered the premises of Elbridge Sanborn in South Harrison, a few nights since, and stole some half dozen hens and a large flock of good sized chickens. The thief had the kindness to kill a part of the fowls on the spot and leave the heads behind for the owner. It is said that there are strong suspicions of a young man who has been of such things in the past, and that the theft is likely to be fixed on him.

There will be a large room on the first floor for the use of the lodge. It is expected that the work will be commenced in a short time, and finished before winter.

Lakeside Grange held its regular meeting on the 27th with an attendance of about 40. Two applications for membership were received. An interesting discussion followed, in which each of the speakers took part. It was voted that the Grange hold a Field Day on Howard Farm in Waterford, on Saturday, Sept. 3. BUCKFIELD.

A Place for Everyone.

Went to South Paris, Monday. Took electric for Norway, being informed they tarried fifteen minutes at that point. Thought that amount of time would give a sufficient amount of material to write up the town. We return in a few minutes. Rather short, as I started out early. Met the ADVERTISER editor. Guess he did not know me. His was the only familiar face. Temperature rather low. Boarded the car. Noticed a well kept cemetery where many have taken homes. Returned to South Paris. Met two familiar faces there. Used to meet acquaintances many and often, but they have passed away and new faces and sometimes faces occupy. Visited the well kept cemetery there. It reminded me of a description of a cemetery by a man many years ago, of a well kept cemetery for those days. He said it was "a very flourishing burying ground." The uneven formation of the land, being bordered by the river, lends picturesque interest to the view. Well, we'll soon be there. We have a place to occupy. People do that now more than formerly, when the great dread occupied men's minds in early days for the last resting place of friends, with whom we shall soon become joint occupants. "Tis nature to live, 'tis nature to die."

Rev. Mr. Turner of Rumford Falls was in town Monday.

K. C. Atwood of New Jersey has recently been in town.

Seward Mitchell of Lynn, a former Buckfield boy, is visiting old acquaintances. His sister preceded him.

Walter Ellingwood has leased the A. A. Farrar place where Stanley Benson now resides. Stanley has leased F. A. Taylor's place, the last house on High street.

Isaac Layman and wife of Minneapolis, coming to Boston on the G. A. R. excursion, extended their visit to this place, last week, to visit an uncle, Wm. Irish, and an aunt, Mrs. Wm. Robinson. They were neighbors of ours in Minneapolis thirty-nine years ago. They were anxious to get home after hearing of a disastrous cyclone in their vicinity.

Last Saturday Hon. John P. Swasey and Hon. John D. Long spoke on political lines, past and present, to a small audience at Nesinot hall, Monday.

Col. Kimball of Norway and candidate Davis of Waterville spoke at the same place on Democratic lines to a slightly larger audience. Since I was not present I cannot particularize. As I never have heard Davis speak, I would like to have attended, but being absent I lost hence I am in about the fix that a man I once knew, who was not safe to gamble on politically. On being interviewed he would reply, "I want to hear the arguments." Since I have not heard the arguments I am at a loss to know how to vote.
